Subject: Short sighted vision relative to Microsoft fiasco

It appears to me that the United States Justice Department has been very short sighted in what the Microsoft Corporation has done for the "home user" and to the overall balance of payments to the US Treasury. Go ahead and kill them off and create a reason for them to leave the U. S. and you will be responsible for more of a problem than settling the case now. The Clinton administration created the mess to cover up for the presidents wrong doings and get the "heat off" him and now you are just proliferating a non problem. Where else could a small time user like me get a desk top software setup so cheaply and made in the USA? You guys are not solving the problem, just adding to it in my opinion. You are all alike. Kill any one who makes a dollar and at the same time take away the little guys software while pretending to represent him.
